Guide to the Interpretation of Course Evaluations at UT Austin
The goal of course evaluation process at UT Austin is to drive teaching excellence and to support continuous improvement in teaching and learning experiences. Course evaluations provide snapshots of student perspectives on their course-level learning experiences. Most experts on teaching evaluation advise that no individual method gives the complete picture of an instructor's teaching effectiveness, multiple and diverse measures, on multiple occasions, are advised to give a full picture of the teaching effectiveness of a particular instructor. Moreover, other factors, such as size of class, level of the class, and content of the course, can cause small variations in the ratings. Therefore, student perspectives for a particular instructor or course should be interpreted as a snapshot, and not as providing complete information on the teaching effectiveness of that instructor. For additional details, including the scales and how the Mean scores are calculated, please review the Report Guide at the end of this document or, UT Austin's Viewing Course Evaluation Results webpage.

Comment Questions

Identify aspects of the course that were the most effective in helping your learning.

Comments
Some aspects of the course that were the most effective for me were how the lecture videos explained what the readings covered in case I needed further clarification. Another thing was how easy it is to get in contact with the instructors.
being able to choose which writing assignments to do, and having multiple attempts in the readings was helpful too.
the readings were helpful and organized.
Rachel was consistently communicative and ensured students' understanding of the readings and assignments.
Rachel Jeon was incredibly supportive and an extremely helpful professor, I would not have had such a good time doing this course if it wasn't for her and her help. She went beyond just the course material as well and provided support in other areas like building a career path for Human Rights and exploring areas around that.
I loved all the content in this course! It was all explained quite thoroughly and I really appreciated how the important information we had to retain was explained multiple times throughout different lectures. I also liked the structure of completing a reading before watching a lecture as the lecture really allowed me to understand what I needed to know the most from the readings and made sure I understood it.
I enjoyed watching the lecture videos and being able to complete each assignment at my own pace. The instructor and teaching assistant graded each assignment on a timely manner and diligently sent reminders about deadlines/upcoming assignments. The course was very well organized and easy to navigate.
Readings were very interesting
She put much effort into commenting on our written assignments and sending emails discussing class matters.
video lectures
quiz checks
The lectures and readings were most effective
The concluding thoughts as well as the guides to the material. We often times make notes of what we think is important but completely overlook what is asked of us. The learning guides helped navigate the readings
–lecture –quizzes –slides
Rachel was very communicative regarding any questions that we had. She was very thorough on her notes to my first writing assessment. Her feedback helped me better understand what areas I did well on and what areas needed improvement.
The organization of the course aids in me gaining a deeper understanding of the topic at hand. This is because each chapter is distinctly separated in the course, and amongst those chapters, the learning objectives are divided in readings, lectures, then quizzes, ensuring that i learn and check for understanding.
Readings were curated to prioritize students' understanding
I enjoyed the writing assignments!
I thought that the videos did a very good job in explaining the content of the readings that were required.

Identify the aspect of the course that you found most challenging, why you found it was challenging, and suggest one thing that could be done to help future students meet that challenge more effectively.

Comments
I normally have a tough time getting through online courses; however, this course was thoughtfully organized and easy to follow! I would suggest maybe having similar example documents to help with the writing assignments.
volume of readings, specially because the texts were content heavy (as someone with first time exposure to this kind of material).
the essays were a bit time consuming, i feel like if there's going to be an essay due every week it shouldn't be as time consuming especially since the grading of the essays are a bit strict.
There was nothing particularly challenging that requires attention.
I think the most challenging aspect was just managing all the information, but I suppose there isn't a lot to do about that since it is a summer course.
I think the readings were sometimes hard to understand at times due to the dense content within them, so I would recommend future students to allocate enough time to read them. The essays also take quite a bit of time so I would recommend others to get started on it sooner rather than later.
The aspect of the course that I found most challenging was the readings, as they were very dense. Nevertheless, I found the readings to be useful in understanding different aspects of international human rights, and the lecture videos were a great supplement to aid in understanding.
Writing assignments were difficult but kind of fun in a way – good prompts Trying to transpose course material into scenarios for writing was difficult.
some of the readings were long writing assignments could use more guidance
The part I found most challenging were the writing assignments but they were not difficult to tackle.
Nothing was challenging but everything was foreign so it was a matter of understanding the readings and using the learning guides as ways to fills gaps left after lecture.
–long, tedious readings maybe condense the readings for more focused apprehension
The condensed nature of the class has been the most challenging aspect, but that was something I knew would be a challenge when I selected the class. Working full–time, managing kids, and then trying to find time to push through 5 "classes" has definitely been a time management experience. For future students, it's definitely something to just budget into your week when doing a condensed summer term like this.
The most challenging part is writing the essays. This is because the readings are very tedious, challenging, and complex and writing it in an essay makes you have to not only understand the topic but be able to articulate it in an academic and scholarly way. I think it's harder to do it, especially after the veyr information dense lectures and readings you have to do before it.
Legal concepts but it was also the most gratifying aspect of the course
Everything was very good, no notes!
The assignments were the only challenging aspect of this course, but they were very engaging.
n/a
Having a limit on written assignments was difficult, especially because they are 70% of the grade. I would like the option to submit more writing assignments and get credit for whatever scores higher.

Report Guide

Guide to the Interpretation of Course Evaluations at UT Austin
The goal of course evaluation process at UT Austin is to drive teaching excellence and to support continuous improvement in teaching and learning experiences. The two sets of scales used for core evaluation questions and the associated weights are:

Strongly Agree (5)
Agree (4)
Neutral (3)
Disagree (2)
Strongly Disagree (1)

Excellent (5)
Very Good (4)
Satisfactory (3)
Unsatisfactory (2)
Very Unsatisfactory (1)

The Mean is calculated by adding all of the weights for a single question and dividing by the number of respondents. The course workload question is not averaged.

The number of students (e.g. respondents) marking each option is reported for each of the items. These frequency distributions provide information about the level of student ratings and the spread and shape of the class distribution of responses. The distributions thus provide a picture of student perception of a course.

Course evaluations provide snapshots of student perspectives on their course-level learning experiences. Most experts on teaching evaluation advise that no individual method gives the complete picture of an instructor's teaching effectiveness; multiple and diverse measures, on multiple occasions, are advised to give a full picture of the teaching effectiveness of a particular instructor. Moreover, other factors, such as size of class, level of the class, and content of the course, can cause small variations in the ratings. Therefore, student perspectives for a particular instructor or course should be interpreted as a snapshot, and not as providing complete information on the teaching effectiveness of that instructor.
